“ We loved Sherri so much and miss her deeply. She was the best sister I could have asked for. Sherri was a true friend to so many of us. May God bless Cheryl!

“ Cheryl was one of my treasured colleagues at Catawba College. We often shared our concerns and love for our students. We also shared our love for cats and dogs, regaling each other with stories of their antics and affection. Cheryl had a great heart for all of God’s two- and four-legged creations. Her impact will last for generations. I thank God for the gift of her life.

Cheryl and I had an on-going joke about when our mutual dissertation director, Dra. Margaret Jones, “dejó de morir su pelo” (“stopped dying her hair”—using the word for “to die” as opposed to “to dye”). Silly joke, but we cracked up every time one of us said it. We also shared both our love of animals and our grief at our pets’ deaths: Reba for her, and Ponchi and BooBoo for me. She was so proud of the Rowan County’s new animal facility. I find it hard to believe I’ll never see her again in this life; I’m just hoping to find her waiting, along with all our “children” at the Rainbow Bridge.
