“ Brother, i'm so sorry to hear of your loss. Losing a child is the last thing a parent wants to face in our lives, it's just not supposed to happen. i know how helpless you must feel and how you wish you could have done something to prevent it from happening. Everyone walks their own path and as parents we do all we can to protect our children....but life is unpredictable as we all know. i do know what your feeling because i lost my son in april of 2015...i think of him and miss him everyday and still i think of what if anything could i have done to prevent it from happening.....I never have been able to come up with an answer to that one.... probably never will....so, i'll celebrate his life and the good times we had together and that's what i'll remember...you can do that too brother, it will help with the healing and he'll always be with you....God bless Damion and God bless and help you.....I know you have many friends and even though we have never met, I consider you one of mine and if you need to talk to somebody that has been down this road, feel free to contact me.....Doug Davis..huntsville al...on f.b.

“ Prayers for healing of the parents and family of Damion. No flowers, nor candles lit will ever ease your pain, time helps but the pain is never really gone. Life will never feel complete nor the same as before. It's a daily struggle to live with. Some fail in their efforts to heal and some can, somewhat, move on. My heart aches for the family. May the Lord welcome Damion in his arms.

“ the day i took this picture was the best day of my life. sitting around with him and some good friends talking, learning more and more about him. going on car rides with him, blaring music just looking at the sunset was simply amazing. im so oblivious about everything that has happened, this has definitely opened my eyes and made me realize new things. what i have realized is, this world lost and amazing person, and im not sure what we are going to do without him. he was very special, everyone loved him and i wish everyone got the chance to know him.

i wish things didnt end like they did. you were the most kind hearted loving person i knew. you didnt show much emotion but when you did you meant every single bit of it. you were crazy, fun to be around, always happy, and god your laugh, i could listen to you laugh over and over again. you brought so many people joy, and happiness. what are we ever going to do without you. i cant even think of a world with out your smile and laugh. you meant so much to so many different people in so many different ways. my heart goes out too all of your family and friends. i just can't bare to live a life with out you.

i dont want you too fly high, i want you too soar.
i love you so much D.
