“ My big brother Donnie was 21 years older than me but I remember as kid he bought me this transformer. I played with it for 10 years till I finally broke it from playing with it so much. I bought a copy of it several years ago because it gave me so much good memories as a kid. I also remember when I was like maybe 8 I can't really remember the age exactly just that I was very young and I went to stay all night with him at Keystone he bought me a bicycle that day but at night I was scared to sleep away from home so he drove me all the way back to laeger at like 11 PM and also when I was 18 I was going to join the Military and he swayed me to the Air Force the branch that he was in. I remember visiting him several times when I lived in North Carolina and also the time me and him spent the whole day driving to Kentucky in my late 20's early 30's. I remember the times he would visit mom and me and him would watch NBA basketball games on TV. We were both born on the third day of the month you were the first and I was the last. Miss you Big Brother. We didn't see each other alot but it was happy times when we did.

“ There is 8 year between me and Donnie (my oldest brother). During my high school years, teachers would remark “You are Donnie Lambert sister”? “He was such a good student! . They remembered him fondly after all those years, and always asked about him, especially Mrs Keith. He had that effect on people with his charming personality. Teachers also would remark that there were a lot of the “Lambert children “that came through those school doors. There is 8 of us and he will always be remembered as the first and original member of the seemingly endless Lambert children.

I also enjoyed the time we spent watching t,v together at home, when we all were younger. At the time I was 8 or 9, I just never understood why he loved watching a tv special concerts about this man named “Elvis” that wore ugly rhinestone polyester jumpsuits”

Donnie was the type of person that made anyone feel as though they knew him forever even though it was the first time meeting him. Our memories together will always be cherished and he will never be forgotten!
