“ It’s hard to say goodbye to a friend and coworker like Homer Franklin Lucas III. For 20 years, it was an honor and a joy to work alongside Homer at the Durham Radio Shop. He was not only a dedicated professional but also a kind and steady presence who always had a story to tell or a bit of wisdom to share from his years of service. Homer’s strong sense of duty, shaped by his two decades in the U.S. Navy, carried through everything he did. He took great pride in his work, his team, and the city he served. Those of us who worked with him will remember his quiet humor, his generosity, and his unwavering commitment to doing things right. Our deepest sympathies go out to his son, Joe, and the rest of the Lucas family. Homer’s legacy will live on in the friendships he built, the knowledge he shared, and the example he set for us all. He’ll be truly missed, both as a colleague and as a friend.

Thoughts and prayers to family. Homer was kind, carefree and so easy to work with before I retired. All you had to do was call him at the Radio Shop and he would be there and deal with whatever situation at the Durham Emergency Communications Center. May he rest in heavenly peace.

“ Requiem by Robert Louis Stevenson

*Under the wide and starry sky,
Dig the grave and let me lie.
Glad did I live and gladly die,
And I laid me down with a will.*

*This be the verse you grave for me:
Here he lies where he longed to be;
Home is the sailor, home from sea,
And the hunter home from the hill.*

Farewell Homer!

I had the great pleasure of knowing and working with Homer for many years. I knew Homer to be a good and sincere person, always considerate of others, and conscientious in his duties. Nothing more can be asked of someone.

May the waves carry him gently, and may you rest in peace sailor.
