“ We were introduced to Mr. Gochnauer (Ken) through his employment at E.H. Gochnauer & Sons, Inc. Ken was our first point of contact at the company, and we soon thereafter became friends. We were amazed how Ken, at age 80, would arrive to the workplace at 6:00 am to begin taking calls at 6:15 am. (Mind you, the company then opened at 6:45 am.) One time, Ken even climbed into a ditch in order to get a first-hand glimpse of plumbing systems so that he could subsequently draw an accurate diagram for service. Ken’s dedication was second-to-none. He was a consummate professional, an expert in the field, and importantly, a great person. Perhaps Ken’s best quality was his humor - always making you laugh - whether you wanted to or not! Ken was already missed at the point of his retirement, and now he will continue to be missed, forevermore.

“ Sorry for the loss of your parents; I had gotten to chat with Ken a few times before they moved down south. He reminded me of your grandfather Ben who I knew as a little boy when he lived with my grandparents Christian and Esther.
