“ I got to know Bob from being his main caregiver for two years while at Trinity Oaks. He was a perfect gentleman, very distinguished and stylish in the way he dressed, in the way he carried himself and just how he took pride in his appearance and how he conducted himself . He was well educated and carried himself as such. He could be a comedian at times and make you laugh and towards the end he could say things to make you sad when he got upset but would always apologize. He was truly, “One Of A Kind”. He could go from one extreme to the other. He was very appreciative of every little thing you would do for him and always thank you. Then on the not so good days, let’s just say he could hurt your feelings and make you cry. That’s part of what made him so special. You had to LOVE him in the good times and the not so good times. I will miss our outings; going by his home on Bethel Dr., going by his Grandmother’s old house on Liberty street, going to visit his Mother’s and Father’s graves and going by Haps to get us a hotdog. When you looked back at his life and all his accomplishments, the sports activities he was involved in (swimming and golf), all the places he traveled , all the people he knew and the friends he made over the years you could understand how he must have felt towards the end when he could no longer do the things he was accustomed to, having been very independent and active. He was loved and I knew he loved us all too in his own ways. He lived a wonderful and Blessed life. He will be truly missed.
